

Changes in residents' health status; incidents.

(A) In the event of a significant adverse change in a resident's health status, the community alternative home shall do all of the following:

- (1) Take immediate and proper steps to see that the resident receives necessary intervention including, if needed, medical attention or transfer to an appropriate medical facility;
- (2) Make a notation of the change in health status, and any intervention taken, in the resident's record;
- (3) Notify the resident's sponsor of the significant adverse change in the resident's health status, as soon as possible; and
- (4) Provide pertinent resident information to the person providing the intervention as soon as possible.

(B) As used in this paragraph, "incident" means any accident or episode involving a resident, caregiver, volunteer, or other individual in a community alternative home which presents a risk to the health, safety, or well-being of a resident of the home. In the event of an incident, the home shall do all of the following:

- (1) Take immediate and proper steps to see that the resident or residents involved receive necessary intervention including, if needed, medical attention or transfer to an appropriate medical facility;
- (2) Investigate the incident, and document the incident and the investigation. The documentation shall contain the names of individuals involved; the time, place, and date of the occurrence; a description of the incident; the probable cause; and the care provided or measures taken; and
- (3) Notify the resident's sponsor of the incident, as soon as possible.
